Vinton takes act to his audience

By PAT GROJEAN

Bobby Vinton, star of the 23rd annual Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo, told reporters Thursday afternoon that during his show he would be singing a lot of his old and new hits, kissing the girls, playing a lot of instruments, dancing and "standing on my head or whatever else it will take to please everyone here."

Well, he didn't have to stand on his head, but everything else came true during Thursday's opening night rodeo performance. Unlike most previous Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo entertainers, Vinton did not confine his show to a stage. A long microphone cord permitted him to make his way around the perimeter of the arena fence, singing, dancing and kissing the girls.

Vinton also dispensed with the traditional formal press conference in favor of a more relaxed atmosphere at the rodeo arena where he rehearsed for the opening night show.

Upon his arrival at the rodeo grounds, Vinton took several minutes to talk with reporters and others on the scene while Polish polkas and other music blared in the background. Clad in blue jeans, a Bobby Vinton Polish Power tee-shirt and a jacket that had "Polish power" sequined on the back, Vinton seemed to enjoy talking with reporters. When it came time to rehearse, the relaxed atmosphere continued, although he now was all business — listening to the band and explaining what he wanted from it.

In talking about his performances, such as the one he is doing here, Vinton said, "What I've been doing in my shows is I've been being myself -- and if you're yourself, you can't go wrong ... I basically do what I am."

Thursday night he included some of his first hit songs of the 1960s ++Blue Velvet" and "Mr. Lonely" among others -- with some of his newest songs, "Wooden Heart", and his current big hit, "Melody of Love," with which he closed the program.

Vinton told reporters his biggest song was probably "Roses are Red", which he also included in his program.

Vinton says he chooses songs by "What I personally like" and by whether he would relate to it if he heard it on the air. "There has got to be something about the song that people can relate to," he added, noting that he tries to keep it simple and something people will enjoy.

"Melody of Love" turned out to be a song which people -- especially Polish people -- related to quickly and greatly. That was the song that brought Vinton back from a rather dry spell of several years without a hit.

"That Polish record worked miracles," Vinton said, "where there was an ethnic element (an ethnic element of any country). They were excited about it ... They (people) are very aware of their ethnic background now. Maybe it's because of the economy of the country, Watergate -- whatever. People need something to look back on and feel pretty good about."

Vinton said he did not expect such a great response to "Melody of Love", which includes a section with Polish lyrics.

"But I found out that it gave Polish people -- and there are 30 million of them in this country -- a sense of pride and spirit because of these so-called Polish jokes which have been around," remarked Vinton, who speaks Polish and is of Polish descent.

Vinton noted that he started in show business in 1962 with "Roses are Red My Love" and is still around with ... (at this point Vinton took off singing a few of the Polish words in "Melody of Love").

The curly-headed entertainer noted that he stays in show business "because I like it. I like the traveling, especially now, traveling around doing all these big concerts and playing Las Vegas.

"I figured it was all over with. Now that I have a second chance at it, it really feels good. It's like being sick and being told you will never walk again and all of a sudden you can walk. You really appreciate life, the simple things. You appreciate the press and people being concerned and coming by wanting to talk to you."

Of the dry years between hits, Vinton says, "I sustained, I think, because I had a good night club act. If you have a good night club act without a hit record, you can still do pretty good in this business."

Vinton also talked about his new half-hour variety show which will be televised in 45 of the top 50 cities throughout the country this fall. "It will have good music, comedy and it's going to be so fast that you're going to say, 'Hey, I can't wait for it to come on again next week."

After the interview with reporters sticking microphones toward his mouth, Vinton turned to the business of rehearsing, picked up a microphone of his own and began coordinating his Sikeston program.

Vinton will perform at each of the three remaining rodeo performances which begin at 8 o'clock tonight and Saturday night and 2 p.m. Sunday. In addition to Vinton's portion of the show, which falls in the second half of the rodeo performance, all the thrills and spills of bareback and saddle bronc riding, bulldogging, calf roping and almost everyone' favorite, Brahma bull riding.

The rodeo provides top-grade family entertainment and excitement, plus the sparkle added by the music, comedy and personal contact presented by entertainer Bobby Vinton.

Aviation day set Saturday

World War II vintage aircraft will highlight the Fourth Annual Sikeston Aviation Day on Saturday.

Merle Gustasson of Tallulah, La., returning for his second appearance, will provide spectators with an aerobatic performance in his F4U Corsair, P-51 Mustang, and a North American AT-6 advance trainer. All three are World War II aircraft.

In addition to Gustasson's aircraft and performances there will be two other AT-6 aircraft, a formation flight of seven Grumman AgCats, helicopters and airplanes providing rides, homebuilt aircraft on static display, and a precision sky diving team, according to Pete Malone, co-chairman of the air show.

The show is sponsored by the Sikeston pilot's Association. Proceeds from the show will go for airport improvements. The other co-chairmen are Cotton Holififled and Fred Lashmet, association president.

The air show will open at 11 a.m. with the aerobatic show beginning at 1 p.m.

Tickets may be purchased at the airport in advance or at the gate for $2. Children under 12 can get in free.

Activity center board reaffirms rent decision

The Sikeston Activity Center Board Thursday reaffirmed an earlier decision to revise the fee structure for tenants in the center.

A number of the public organizations using the building have been paying little or no rent for the offices they occupy. Other organizations have been paying large rents.

The center, operated with a $3,000 deficit last year.

Despite criticism from groups which will have to pay more for their offices, the board decided it had little choice but to go ahead with rent increases.

The building is deteriorating rapidly, according to City Manager Charles Church. The air conditioning and heating systems in the south wing do not work, plaster is falling from the ceiling in the auditorium and some rooms, and the walls are deteriorating and the basement occasionally floods from leaking hot water pipes.

If the building is not maintained, it will be virtually useless within the next few years, board members said.

The strongest criticism to the rent hike has come from the Scott County Health Department, which uses six offices on the second floor of the building.

Warren Manning, health department director, said in a letter to the board that his department was guaranteed rent-free office space in a written agreement signed when Sikeston was applying to the federal government for a grant to buy the building.

Church said the city does not have a copy of the agreement in its files.

The board decided that if a copy of any such agreement can be found it will be honored; otherwise, the department's office rent must go up.

Ira Meredith, a real estate agent on the board, said the only signed lease agreement he knew of was one with the WIN program.

Rental from groups using the center now amounts to $8,000 annually, with operating expenses amounting to $11,200.

Under the new fee structure, tenants will pay $12,000. If all the offices are occupied, rent would top $17,000. The rent is about $1.25 per square foot.

The money generated by the new rent structure will be used for building repairs and maintenance.

Williams found guilty

POPLAR BLUFF--Charles Williams, 31, of New Madrid was found guilty Thursday by a Circuit Court jury on separate charges of armed robbery and assault in connection with an armed robbery on Dec. 4, 1973 at Johnson's Grocery and Package Store, located at the junction of Routes Y and DD six miles west of Vanduser.

Judge Flake McHaney set Aug. 22 as the date for pronouncing sentence and hearing motions for a new trial in the change of venue case from Stoddard County.

The jury took about 25 minutes to make its decision and recommended punishment of 15 years in the State Department of Corrections on the armed robbery charge and 10 years on the assault charge. Final sentencing is up to the judge.

Williams previously was found guilty by a Mississippi County Circuit Court jury of armed robbery and assault in a change of venue case from New Madrid County filed in connection with an armed robbery of D.C. Barry Grocery near Kewanee on the same day as the Johnson's Grocery robbery.

Punishment in that case was assessed at 12 years on the armed robbery charge and two years for assault, with the terms to run consecutively.

Ambulance purchased

NEW MADRID–The New Madrid County Court Thursday approved the purchase of a new modular design ambulance to replace the New Madrid base unit which was wrecked Monday.

Cloyce Poore, director of the countywide emergency ambulance service, left today to pick up the vehicle in Atlanta, Ga., according to County Clerk Jim W. Farrenburg.

The new ambulance is mounted on a two-ton chassis and is considered an improvement over the former vehicle.

Farrenburg explained that when the chassis wears out the van portion can be remounted on a new chassis at a considerable savings over the cost of a complete unit replacement.

The vehicle is fully equipped except for radio communications. This will be in-

Plan funds not available

BENTON — Ron Yersak, planning director of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission at Malden, met with the Scott County Court Thursday to discuss countywide planning and zoning.

Planning and zoning would make it possible for the county to receive federal grants for projects and programs.

The problem holding the county back is a matter of $13,000. It takes that much money to implement county planning.

Presiding Judge Louie Hirschowitz of Oran said the money simply is not available at this time, which is the reason a planning and zoning commission has not been selected.

Yersak pointed out that, if necessary, payments may be spread out over a period of two years. He urged the judges to start the planning process because waiting will only put the county further behind in receiving the federal grants.

A start on county planning could help decide which side of the diversion channel between Scott and Cape Girardeau counties a proposed federally funded regional port will be located on the Mississippi River, Yersak also mentioned, adding that if Scott County is working on planning and zoning and receiving federal grants, chances of having the port on its side will be greater.

The county judges were not ready to make a decision Thursday but promised Yersak an answer on Aug. 18, when he is scheduled to visit the County Court again.

The original reason for considering planning and zoning in Scott County was to make it eligible for federal flood insurance programs.

Prairie council protests rate hike

EAST PRAIRIE — In regular session Thursday night, the City Council voted to protest the proposed 39 per cent electrical rate increase sought by Missouri Utilities Co.

City Attorney Fielding Potashnick was instructed to write a letter of protest to the Public Serive Commission.

The council approved paving of one block on Willow Street, between Garfield Street and Washington Drive. Cowan Construction Co. of Sikeston will do the work, which must be completed prior to school opening Aug. 27. The block to be paved runs between First Church of God andR. A. Doyle Elementary School and is used for loading and unloading of students.

Cost of the project is $3,610. The school district and the church will pay $1,300 each and the remaining $1,010 will be paid by the city.

City Manager Frank Carter informed the council that measures to correct sewer problems at the A. L. Webb Junior High School must be taken prior to school opening. Carter was authroized to contact the state highway department for permission to run a sewer line under the highway which runs in front of the school and to seek the necessary boring equipment forthe job, if permission is granted. He said it would be necessary to divert the pressure line which runs into the manhole in front of the school in order to prevent sewage from backing up into the school's lines.

The council advised Carter to meet with Police Chief Jake Abner and stress the need for stricter enforcement of city ordinances by his police officers. It was emphasized that a "get tough" policy by Carter would have the complete backing of the council.

Carter was also authorized to purchase an eight-inch electric pump, needed by the water department to pump outsewer cave-ins.

It was announced by Carter that the city's new asphalt spreader, purchased from

HOW TO WIN AGAINST COMMUNISM

So much has been said about how we are losing to the forces of Communist imperialism (and there is no doubt but that we are losing) that we seldom talk about how we can WIN the battle. Dr. Fred Schwarz, President of the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade in Long Beach, California, recently published some suggestions to halt and reverse the Communist advances.

His first suggestion is that we should take advantage of the great weaknesses inherent in Communism. "The normal person desires freedom; Communism imposes slavery. When freedom exists, it is taken for granted as one unconsciously breathes air. When freedom is denied, the passion for it dwarfs all other appetites as when air is denied. Consequently there is a state of conflict between Communist rulers and the people. The Communists can never relax, as the will to freedom may burst through any softened area. We should, therefore, direct our attention and help to the ruled — not the rulers; to the victims, not the tyrants; to the prisoners, not the jailers."

And, Dr. Schwarz adds, "A moderate beginning can be made by publicly protesting every known instance of Communist tyranny."

A second suggestion by Dr. Schwarz is that "We should not scapegoat." He points out that "it is easy to blame others. If we have not done all that we could, personally, then we, too, are guilty. And who among us can claim to have done all possible? National will is constructed from personal will." Hence, Dr. Schwarz urges that our first question should be in terms of what changes we should make in our personal conduct, to contribute toward the battle for freedom and against Communism.

Lastly, Dr. Schwarz urges that "we should work with confidence in final victory." The Communists, he points out, are pessimistic; but Americans, with their Christian heritage, are optimistic. While the Communists have a phony "optimism" that promises as improved future to some vague, collective abstraction such as "mankind" or the "proletariat," all they offer to the individual is hardening arteries, senility and death. "This," he says, "is abysmal pessimism."

"But the Christian optimist can say: 'Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man the things that God has prepared for them that love Him.'"

Well, the optimism suggested by Dr. Schwarz is certainly needed. If the Communists can convince us that we are going to lose, they will have won. Only by looking forward to eventual victory, and working toward that victory, will be be able to win.

Question: What regimes in Latin America are guilty of the imprisonment and possibly the torture of political prisoners? Answer (from anyone who has read American media): the right wing military dictatorships in Chile and Brazil.

Well, but did you know (we're quoting the Washington Post) that there are an estimated 25,000 to 50,000 political prisoners in Cuba right now and that in the 16 years since he came to power Castro has refused permission to the International Red Cross and the Organization of American States to visit his prisons? There has been zero coverage of that situation.

Did you know, too (we're quoting from the Mexican magazine Impacto now), that when a group of Cuban exiles headed by Dr. Medrano, former head of Prensa Libre in Havana, went to Geneva last winter to protest against the treatment of political prisoners in Cuba to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, the first thing that happened to the delegation was that it was placed under house arrest? CREATING MEDICAL PROBLEMS

Not too many revolutionary changes should be made in the U.S. medical system if public opinion has any influence on the actions of Congress and the federal bureaucracy. A Louis Harris poll shows that only 3 percent of people today think that health care is among the biggest problems facing the United States. As a matter of fact, it is 15th on a list of 16 problem categories. There are two reasons for this state of public opinion. In the first place, the U.S. medical system does produce the highest quality care available anywhere in the world. In the second place, as a result of the innovative action taken by the private health insurance industry, combined with federally-financed programs such as Medicare, the financial pain of paying for medical services has been eliminated or vastly reduced for the majority of the nation's people. Taking into account the effectiveness of the overall health care system in the U.S., much caution should be exercised by those seeking to improve it further.

Consider the Medicare program providing medical coverage for older people. Federal funds are used to buy medical services. Congress directed that the private health insurance industry should be employed in the role of general contractors to implement and operate the program because they were experienced in the business of providing financing for health care services. The Social Security Administration was given the authority to regulate and evaluate the carriers' administrative performance. Medicare, through the exceptional administrative expertise of the private carriers, quickly brought new medical security to older Americans eligible for its benefits.

Despite an outstanding record, proposals have been made to dismantle the private carriers' responsibility for managing the Medicare program. Commenting on this situation, the head of the nation's largest prepaid medical care financing organization has said, "We have witnessed in the past two years a desire on the part of some government officials, outside interests and vendors of data processing services to alter significantly the role of the carrier as a general contractor. They propose to limit it, in effect, to one of several different contractors of equal authority, each doing a part of the total job."

It seems evident that dividing authority and fragmenting responsibility for administering medical benefits would be a first-rate shortcut to lowering the morale and efficiency of the private carriers who have done an exceptional job of administering the Medicare program. This would be a case of creating problems and crises where none exist. Furthermore, it would be a matter of moving away from, rather than toward, the ultimate goal of achieving maximum access to the best in medical services for all Americans.

SITUATION NORMAL, ALL FUZZED UP

To the alarm of many people, including a number of members of Congress, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger has hinted that the United States might be the first to use nuclear weapons in a confrontation with the Soviet Union.

"First use could conceivably—let me underscore conceivably—involve what we define as strategic forces and possibly, possibly—let me underscore possibly—involve selective strikes at the Soviet Union," he said.

There are just enough "conceivablies" and "possibilies" in what at first, terrifying blush appears to be a radical departure from long-established U.S. policy to absorb the first blow, whether nuclear or conventional, in any showdown with the Soviet Union to have the strategists in the Kremlin scratching their heads.

And that, despite the protests the secretary's statement has aroused, is the whole idea.

The logic is that if a potential enemy believes that the United States will never, never strike first, he will be tempted to push aggression to dangerous limits. But if he is not sure how the United States will respond, he will be much more careful and cautious.

This works both ways, of course. If there is uncertainty about how the Soviets would react to what they may perceive as a threat to their security, this will tend to keep the more bomb happy cenizens of the Pentagon be subtracted from gross income sanity.

Nothing has been changed in the balance of terror that exists between the United States and the U.S.S.R. The line has just been drawn a little more fuzzily, and paradoxically because of this fuzziness is less likely than before to be approached, or crossed.

FOOD STAMPS—COSTLY ECONOMIC FIRST AID

Much the same thing is happening to the food stamp program as has happened to the Social Security system.

Born in the Great Depression, Social Security was intended to provide a minimum income for those no longer working or unable to work. Its purpose was to stave off dire poverty among the elderly, the disabled, the widowed or orphaned.

Since then, of course, for millions of Americans Social Security has become their sole retirement income rather than merely a supplement to other income or savings. As every working person knows, payroll deductions needed to pay for steadily increasing Social Security benefits have soared to the point where many Americans are paying more in Social Security taxes than in income taxes.

Likewide, food stamps were originally conceived as a food purchase subsidy provided by the federal government for families or individuals below a certain level of income. Since 1971, enrollment in the program has risen from about 9.4 million people to nearly 20 million and its cost is expected to reach $6.5 billion in the fiscal year that began July 1.

How far we have departed from the original concept of the program is shown by the recent ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington invalidating the formula upon which food stamp payments are based. The action was taken in response to a class-action suit brought by nine low-income families, the city of New York, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the National Welfare Rights Organization.

"For a family that needs a loaf of bread, the offer of a slice is poor comfort," said a three-judge panel, ordering the Agriculture Department to come up with a new formula that allows food stamp recipients to purchase "a nutritionally adequate diet."

Most people will probably go along with this, just as they have gone along with the idea that Social Security should provide every American with an adequate standard of living—assuming that we can agree on what is "adequate" in either case.

But while the Agriculture Department is liberalizing its eligibility requirements for those who really need food stamps, it is long past time for it to tighten up its procedures to exclude those who don't need them.

Congress has passed a temporary law banning stamps for students claimed as dependents by well-off families. Just the other day, however, the Senate Agriculture Comittee was told that the department's complicated schedule of deductions is allowing many middle-income families to qualify for government help in paying their grocery bills. Expenses that can be subtracted from gross income include such things as federal, state and local taxes, Social Security taxes, medical costs over $10 a month, child care payments, tuition fees, rent or mortgages payments and union dues and alimony payments.

Urging its menbers not to be "too proud" to apply for food stamps, the National Education Assn. reports that one Minnesota teacher, with six children, qualified for stamps despite an income of $14,900.

Twenty million is a lot of people. It's nearly one out of every 10 Americans. In that large a number of food stamp recipients there are bound to be abuses, as well as instances where truly needy families are not receiving as much as they need. No doubt there are also many Americans who could qualify for the stamps but cling to the rather old-fashioned idea that they are responsible for their own support and that of their children.

The trouble is that the food stamp program is merely a kind of Band-Aid remedy applied to one symptom of the underlying sickness in the economy. As notes, its enrollment has more than doubled in four years. Unless the fundamental problems of inflation and unemployment are solved, it could grow even more prodigiously in coming years.

Black Urban League charges U. S. badly trails other nations' care for jobless

Alarmed by heavy black unemployment the National Urban League has developed a "Hidden Unemployment Index." Its disclosures are startling. I asked the League's national leader to analyze its findings and offer suggestions for relief of the desperate. Here is his answer, written exclusively forthis column.

By VERNON E. JORDAN, JR.
Executive Director,
National Urban League

NEW YORK -- We Americans like to think of ourselves as the world's leaders in just about everything. Well, we're not, especially when it comes to standards of social welfare and aid to the unemployed. In those areas we lag far behind the industrialized nations of Western Europe.

There's a worldwide recession going on now, but here in the United States unemployment is so bad, we've got a depression on our hands. No other major country has allowed the unemployment rate to skyrocket the way ours has, and most others have adopted benefit scales that cushion the effects of joblessness.

The official unemployment rate in the U. S. is over 9 per cent, and that is grossly understated because large categories of the jobless are not counted, including well over a million people who are "discouraged workers," and have given up the search for nonexistent jobs.

The faulty statistics led the Urban League to develop a "Hidden Unemployment Index" that shows about one in four black workers out of a job, or almost double the government's estimate. And while the government estimates white unemployment at about 9.2 per cent, the true rate is closer to 15 per cent.

But in France, the unemployment rate is less than 5 per cent, and even that is far above West Germany's 3.7 per cent, Italy's 3.1 per cent, and Japan's 1.8 per cent.

Here, if you are laid off, you can expect to get less than half your normal take-home pay in unemployment compensation, and you can forget about the fringe benefits of your job. Most of the black jobless get no unemployment benefits at all. But in Wet Germany, an unemployed worker is entitled to over two-thirds his normal paycheck for a year and then gets 58 per cent of it indefinitely.

There's also a bonus for switching trades and training for new kinds of work and in high unemployment areas the government subsidizes businesses who hire the unemployed.

This reflects a healthy recognition that unemployment is the result of the economy's failure to provide jobs and that individual suffering must be minimized. That's a viewpoint which extends to social legislation too.

While Americans get worked up about welfare payments and blame the recipients for the economic failures of the society, all Western Europe states have positive social insurance mechanisms based on the "right" of individuals to share in the society's affluence.

All have some form of family allowance system that includes government payments to all children. In France and Spain such payments exceed the average factory worker's taxes so his family income is actually higher than his gross wages. Some 65 countries have family allowances including our next door neighbor, Canada.

Most also have maternity benefits and national health programs. While Congress still hasn't moved on a national health plan Americans abroad who need care can walk into any hospital and receive treatment on the spot without filling out endless forms. Back home, even an emergency case has to prove ability to pay before treatment.

All this, and other social benefits, reflect a deep difference in theway people look at social problems like unemployment, poverty and health.

Here in America we still cling to outmoded theories of individual responsibility for those risks in life that other people recognize as either the results of society's failures or as social obligations that should be shared by the entire nation.

Contrary to what many people may expect, the benefits available in other industrial nations have not lowered initiative or slowed economic development. The reverse has been true. Among the countries with the strongest economies are those that have the most generous social insurance programs.

We must present a strange picture to these nations, with our smaller share of the gross national product devoted to the social budget, our willingness to tolerate human suffering and our dehumanizatin of those in need.

This is a country that chose to dump hundreds of billions of dollars fighting a futile war in Vietnam instead of making the social investments at home which would yield a prosperous economy and a humane society.

Especially at this time of national depression which hits young people, older citizens, blacks and other minorities hardest, we ought to rethink our approach to the role of social services in a civilized society. This is one area where we are far behind. It's time to catch up with the rest of the world.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Mills and the Masons

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., whose escapades with stripper Fanne Foxe became the talk of the nation 10 months ago, will be hauled before his Masonic lodge on August 22 to answer for his misconduct.

The recuperating Mills, once a power in the House, now a forlorn figure, will be tried by a five-man commission at his home lodge in Kensett, Ark.

Just as his name was fading from the headlines, he must now face new notoriety. He could be expelled in disgrace from the fraternity. This would be a bitter blow to Mills, a 33rd-degree Mason, who was awarded the Grand Lodge Medal of Honor for bringing credit and glory to Masonry.

Mills told us he would fight the charges if the fraternity goes ahead with a formal trial. If all Masons who have a drinking problem were expelled, he added bitterly, the fraternity would lose half its membership.

Sources familiar with the preparations say the trial is set. The Gran Master, Lee Overstreet of Texarkana, Ark., is determined to expel Mills, they say.

Overstreet is described as a stern leader who is determined to clean up Masonry and discipline the wrongdoers. Only if Mills is contrite and confessional, say our sources, can he expect any leniency.

Overstreet refused to duscuss the Mills case with us because, he said, "I am involved."

The embattled Mills said he would contend, in his own defense, that his alcoholism was a sickness that required treatment, not punishment.

A degenerative disc in his back, he said, had started causing him excruciating pain two years ago. Although surgery repaired the disc, he continued to suffer severe attacks of pain.

He took painkilling drugs which were "addictive," he said. He also began to drink. The combination led to his erratic behavior with the striptease star.

His personal Watergate came in the early hours of October 7 when Fanne Foxe, otherwise known as the Argentine Firecracker, clawed Mills' face, bolted from his Mark IV Continental and leaped into Washington's Tidal Basin.

The squalid publicity didn't deter him a month later from making a surprising appearance on the stage of a Boston burlesque theater to plant a kiss upon the Argentine Firecracker. "This won't ruin me," he boasted erroneously.

Not long afterwards, he checked into a Washington hospital with "complete mental and physical exhaustion." He subsequently confessed at a press conference that he was an alcoholic.

He now attends Alcoholics Anonymous meetings every night. "I feel remarkably well," he said. He believes he will be rehabilitated and able to return to his congressional chores in September. But he will never go back to the work schedule of the past, which wore him out, rubbed his nerves raw and caused him to reach for the bottle.

He had been apprehensive at first, he said, about the attitude of his congressional colleagues. But he is now at ease with them. "They have been exceedingly cordial," he said.

Has he heard from the Argentine Firecracker? Not since his breakdown, he said.

CIA ECHOES -- Vice President Nelson Rockefeller produced a CIA study thatwas inconclusive. The House investigation of the CIA is flounSen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has managed to keep the CIA on the griddle.

Yet behind his back, his investigators are bickering. The committee's four task forces constantly spat with one another. The staff attorneys mistrust the professors. The outside experts mistrust the insiders who were once on the payrolls of the intelligence agencies.

There is also tension between the ivory tower staff members who take th gee-whiz approach and the former criminal investigators who are more pragmatic.

Some staff members complain that Church will never be able to complete the investigation by his end-of- February deadline. It is impossible to undo 20 years of congressional neglect of the CIA, FBI and other intelligence agencies in seven more months, they contend. A responsible investigation would take at least two years, possibly five years, by their estimates.

A spokesman suggested the permanent oversight committee could follow up the finding of the Church committee. The final report itself, he added, will be the best rebuttal to other criticisms.

HOW TO WIN AGAINST COMMUNISM

So much has been said about how we are losing to the forces of Communist imperialism (and there is no doubt but that we are losing) that we seldom talk about how we can WIN the battle. Dr. Fred Schwarz, President of the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade in Long Beach, California, recently published some suggestions to halt and reverse the Communist advances.

His first suggestion is that we should take advantage of the great weaknesses inherent in Communism. "The normal person desires freedom; Communism imposes slavery. When freedom exists, it is taken for granted as one unconsciously breathes air. When freedom is denied, the passion for it dwarfs all other appetites as when air is denied. Consequently there is a state of conflict between Communist rulers and the people. The Communists can never relax, as the will to freedom may burst through any softened area. We should, therefore, direct our attention and help to the ruled — not the rulers; to the victims, not the tyrants; to the prisoners, not the jailers."

And, Dr. Schwarz adds, "A moderate beginning can be made by publicly protesting every known instance of Communist tyranny."

A second suggestion by Dr. Schwarz is that "We should not scapegoat." He points out that "it is easy to blame others. If we have not done all that we could, personally, then we, too, are guilty. And who among us can claim to have done all possible? National will is constructed from personal will." Hence, Dr. Schwarz urges that our first question should be in terms of what changes we should make in our personal conduct, to contribute toward the battle for freedom and against Communism.

Lastly, Dr. Schwarz urges that "we should work with confidence in final victory." The Communists, he points out, are pessimistic; but Americans, with their Christian heritage, are optimistic. While the Communists have a phony "optimism" that promises as improved future to some vague, collective abstraction such as "mankind" or the "proletariat," all they offer to the individual is hardening arteries, senility and death. "This," he says, "is abysmal pessimism."

"But the Christian optimist can say: 'Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man the things that God has prepared for them that love Him.'"

Well, the optimism suggested by Dr. Schwarz is certainly needed. If the Communists can convince us that we are going to lose, they will have won. Only by looking forward to eventual victory, and working toward that victory, will be be able to win.

Just before Christmas, we had as visitors two young couples from Hong Kong, where it never snows. I decided to drive them to a mountain ski area and let them have the experience of being in deep snow and of riding the ski lift. As we drove up the canyon through the green pines with their sparkling white mantle, our visitors were wide-eyed with the beauty of it all. One man said quietly, "I feel as if I'm right inside my own Christmas card."

FOOD STAMPS—COSTLY ECONOMIC FIRST AID

Much the same thing is happening to the food stamp program as has happened to the Social Security system.

Born in the Great Depression, Social Security was intended to provide a minimum income for those no longer working or unable to work. Its purpose was to stave off dire poverty among the elderly, the disabled, the widowed or orphaned.

Since then, of course, for millions of Americans Social Security has become their sole retirement income rather than merely a supplement to other income or savings. As every working person knows, payroll deductions needed to pay for steadily increasing Social Security benefits have soared to the point where many Americans are paying more in Social Security taxes than in income taxes.

Likewide, food stamps were originally conceived as a food purchase subsidy provided by the federal government for families or individuals below a certain level of income. Since 1971, enrollment in the program has risen from about 9.4 million people to nearly 20 million and its cost is expected to reach $6.5 billion in the fiscal year that began July 1.

How far we have departed from the original concept of the program is shown by the recent ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington invalidating the formula upon which food stamp payments are based. The action was taken in response to a class-action suit brought by nine low-income families, the city of New York, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the National Welfare Rights Organization.

"For a family that needs a loaf of bread, the offer of a slice is poor comfort," said a three-judge panel, ordering the Agriculture Department to come up with a new formula that allows food stamp recipients to purchase "a nutritionally adequate diet."

Most people will probably go along with this, just as they have gone along with the idea that Social Security should provide every American with an adequate standard of living—assuming that we can agree on what is "adequate" in either case.

But while the Agriculture Department is liberalizing its eligibility requirements for those who really need food stamps, it is long past time for it to tighten up its procedures to exclude those who don't need them.

Congress has passed a temporary law banning stamps for students claimed as dependents by well-off families. Just the other day, however, the Senate Agriculture Comittee was told that the department's complicated schedule of deductions is allowing many middle-income families to qualify for government help in paying their grocery bills. Expenses that can be subtracted from gross income include such things as federal, state and local taxes, Social Security taxes, medical costs over $10 a month, child care payments, tuition fees, rent or mortgages payments and union dues and alimony payments.

Urging its menbers not to be "too proud" to apply for food stamps, the National Education Assn. reports that one Minnesota teacher, with six children, qualified for stamps despite an income of $14,900.

Twenty million is a lot of people. It's nearly one out of every 10 Americans. In that large a number of food stamp recipients there are bound to be abuses, as well as instances where truly needy families are not receiving as much as they need. No doubt there are also many Americans who could qualify for the stamps but cling to the rather old-fashioned idea that they are responsible for their own support and that of their children.

The trouble is that the food stamp program is merely a kind of Band-Aid remedy applied to one symptom of the underlying sickness in the economy. As notes, its enrollment has more than doubled in four years. Unless the fundamental problems of inflation and unemployment are solved, it could grow even more prodigiously in coming years.

The head of a large department store was passing through the packing room one day when he saw a boy lounging against a wooden box, whistling cheerfully. The chief motioned the boy to follow him into his office.

"How much do you get a week?" he demanded.

"Fifty dollars, sir," was the timid answer.

"Then here's a week's pay—now get out!"

When the boy had gone, the boss summoned the foreman of the packing department. "When did we hire that boy?" he asked.

"We never hired him," came the astonishing answer. "He just brought in a package."

Black Urban League charges U. S. badly trails other nations' care for jobless

Alarmed by heavy black unemployment the National Urban League has developed a "Hidden Unemployment Index." Its disclosures are startling. I asked the League's national leader to analyze its findings and offer suggestions for relief of the desperate. Here is his answer, written exclusively forthis column.

By VERNON E. JORDAN, JR.
Executive Director,
National Urban League

NEW YORK -- We Americans like to think of ourselves as the world's leaders in just about everything. Well, we're not, especially when it comes to standards of social welfare and aid to the unemployed. In those areas we lag far behind the industrialized nations of Western Europe.

There's a worldwide recession going on now, but here in the United States unemployment is so bad, we've got a depression on our hands. No other major country has allowed the unemployment rate to skyrocket the way ours has, and most others have adopted benefit scales that cushion the effects of joblessness.

The official unemployment rate in the U. S. is over 9 per cent, and that is grossly understated because large categories of the jobless are not counted, including well over a million people who are "discouraged workers," and have given up the search for nonexistent jobs.

The faulty statistics led the Urban League to develop a "Hidden Unemployment Index" that shows about one in four black workers out of a job, or almost double the government's estimate. And while the government estimates white unemployment at about 9.2 per cent, the true rate is closer to 15 per cent.

But in France, the unemployment rate is less than 5 per cent, and even that is far above West Germany's 3.7 per cent, Italy's 3.1 per cent, and Japan's 1.8 per cent.

Here, if you are laid off, you can expect to get less than half your normal take-home pay in unemployment compensation, and you can forget about the fringe benefits of your job. Most of the black jobless get no unemployment benefits at all. But in Wet Germany, an unemployed worker is entitled to over two-thirds his normal paycheck for a year and then gets 58 per cent of it indefinitely.

There's also a bonus for switching trades and training for new kinds of work and in high unemployment areas the government subsidizes businesses who hire the unemployed.

This reflects a healthy recognition that unemployment is the result of the economy's failure to provide jobs and that individual suffering must be minimized. That's a viewpoint which extends to social legislation too.

While Americans get worked up about welfare payments and blame the recipients for the economic failures of the society, all Western Europe states have positive social insurance mechanisms based on the "right" of individuals to share in the society's affluence.

All have some form of family allowance system that includes government payments to all children. In France and Spain such payments exceed the average factory worker's taxes so his family income is actually higher than his gross wages. Some 65 countries have family allowances including our next door neighbor, Canada.

Most also have maternity benefits and national health programs. While Congress still hasn't moved on a national health plan Americans abroad who need care can walk into any hospital and receive treatment on the spot without filling out endless forms. Back home, even an emergency case has to prove ability to pay before treatment.

All this, and other social benefits, reflect a deep difference in theway people look at social problems like unemployment, poverty and health.

Here in America we still cling to outmoded theories of individual responsibility for those risks in life that other people recognize as either the results of society's failures or as social obligations that should be shared by the entire nation.

Contrary to what many people may expect, the benefits available in other industrial nations have not lowered initiative or slowed economic development. The reverse has been true. Among the countries with the strongest economies are those that have the most generous social insurance programs.

We must present a strange picture to these nations, with our smaller share of the gross national product devoted to the social budget, our willingness to tolerate human suffering and our dehumanizatin of those in need.

This is a country that chose to dump hundreds of billions of dollars fighting a futile war in Vietnam instead of making the social investments at home which would yield a prosperous economy and a humane society.

Especially at this time of national depression which hits young people, older citizens, blacks and other minorities hardest, we ought to rethink our approach to the role of social services in a civilized society. This is one area where we are far behind. It's time to catch up with the rest of the world.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Mills and the Masons

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., whose escapades with stripper Fanne Foxe became the talk of the nation 10 months ago, will be hauled before his Masonic lodge on August 22 to answer for his misconduct.

The recuperating Mills, once a power in the House, now a forlorn figure, will be tried by a five-man commission at his home lodge in Kensett, Ark.

Just as his name was fading from the headlines, he must now face new notoriety. He could be expelled in disgrace from the fraternity. This would be a bitter blow to Mills, a 33rd-degree Mason, who was awarded the Grand Lodge Medal of Honor for bringing credit and glory to Masonry.

Mills told us he would fight the charges if the fraternity goes ahead with a formal trial. If all Masons who have a drinking problem were expelled, he added bitterly, the fraternity would lose half its membership.

Sources familiar with the preparations say the trial is set. The Gran Master, Lee Overstreet of Texarkana, Ark., is determined to expel Mills, they say.

Overstreet is described as a stern leader who is determined to clean up Masonry and discipline the wrongdoers. Only if Mills is contrite and confessional, say our sources, can he expect any leniency.

Overstreet refused to duscuss the Mills case with us because, he said, "I am involved."

The embattled Mills said he would contend, in his own defense, that his alcoholism was a sickness that required treatment, not punishment.

A degenerative disc in his back, he said, had started causing him excruciating pain two years ago. Although surgery repaired the disc, he continued to suffer severe attacks of pain.

He took painkilling drugs which were "addictive," he said. He also began to drink. The combination led to his erratic behavior with the striptease star.

His personal Watergate came in the early hours of October 7 when Fanne Foxe, otherwise known as the Argentine Firecracker, clawed Mills' face, bolted from his Mark IV Continental and leaped into Washington's Tidal Basin.

The squalid publicity didn't deter him a month later from making a surprising appearance on the stage of a Boston burlesque theater to plant a kiss upon the Argentine Firecracker. "This won't ruin me," he boasted erroneously.

Not long afterwards, he checked into a Washington hospital with "complete mental and physical exhaustion." He subsequently confessed at a press conference that he was an alcoholic.

He now attends Alcoholics Anonymous meetings every night. "I feel remarkably well," he said. He believes he will be rehabilitated and able to return to his congressional chores in September. But he will never go back to the work schedule of the past, which wore him out, rubbed his nerves raw and caused him to reach for the bottle.

He had been apprehensive at first, he said, about the attitude of his congressional colleagues. But he is now at ease with them. "They have been exceedingly cordial," he said.

Has he heard from the Argentine Firecracker? Not since his breakdown, he said.

CIA ECHOES -- Vice President Nelson Rockefeller produced a CIA study thatwas inconclusive. The House investigation of the CIA is flounSen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has managed to keep the CIA on the griddle.

Yet behind his back, his investigators are bickering. The committee's four task forces constantly spat with one another. The staff attorneys mistrust the professors. The outside experts mistrust the insiders who were once on the payrolls of the intelligence agencies.

There is also tension between the ivory tower staff members who take th gee-whiz approach and the former criminal investigators who are more pragmatic.

Some staff members complain that Church will never be able to complete the investigation by his end-of- February deadline. It is impossible to undo 20 years of congressional neglect of the CIA, FBI and other intelligence agencies in seven more months, they contend. A responsible investigation would take at least two years, possibly five years, by their estimates.

A spokesman suggested the permanent oversight committee could follow up the finding of the Church committee. The final report itself, he added, will be the best rebuttal to other criticisms.

GRACE FOR CURTIS

The new Federal Election Commission has ruled that politicians may have a grace period for paying their pre-1975 campaign debts. One of the former candidates who benefitted from the ruling was none other than the commission's own chairman, ex-Rep. Tom Curtis, R-Mo., who owed $68,000 on a 1974 campaign loan.

disqualified himself from participating in the decision. The ruling as made by his colleague who serve with him on the commission.

The case of the too hasty I.O.U.

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

When Benny lost a bundle at the race track, he wasn't the least bit chilly. Because, after all, it was his boss' shirt that he had been betting and not his own. Each day, before going to the track, he'd finance his sporting venture by surreptitiously dipping his sticky fingers into his employer's unguarded till.

Then, one day, Benny's boss figured out why he was losing money despite the fact business was fantastic. and, he summoned Benny's father to come in to see him.

"Either I get my dough back," he warned Benny's father, "or your son goes to the pokey.

Upset at the thought of seeing his son in stripes, Benny's father readily agreed to sign an I.O.U. for the amount Benny had pilfered. But, when he thought it over, he decided he had acted too hastily and refused to make good on the I.O.U.

The result? Benny's boos sued to collect.

"I'm not liable on that I.O.U.," insisted Benny's harrassed father in court.

"I signed it against my will. I was threatened that if I didn't do it, I'd have a jailbird for a son. And, what father wants to see his son behind bars?"

"This is no time to be philosophical," responded benny's boss. "This is a time for amends. Which means I want my money."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Benny's father pay up on his hasty I.O.U.?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that it is against public policy to cover up a crime. A note signed in return for a promise not to start a criminal prosecution, noted the judge, is invalid.

Truck line ordered to halt some service

BLOOMFIELD — Elfrink Truck Lines Inc. of Advance was ordered this week to not conduct direct line hauls on intrastate commerce as a motor common carrier between St. Louis and Sikeston by Circuit Judge Falke McHaney, who ordered a hearing set at 10 a.m. Aug. 20 for the company to show cause why an injunction should not be granted.

The order came after the Missouri Public Service Commission filed suit against the company, asking that a temporary and then permanent order be issued preventing the company from making the hauls between the two cities. The PSC in its petition claimed that the company had been operating the hauls without proper authorization.

On March 19 the PSC issued an order citing Elfrink to show cause why its authority to operate in the state should not be suspended or revoked or penalties sought by the commission for operating in intrastate commerce between St. Louis and Sikeston without requisite authority granted by the commission.

In its petition, the PSC said that on April 25 it and the defendant submitted a stipulation to the commission in which it was admitted that during January the company had participated in 22 direct line hauls from St. Louis to Sikeston and that it had participated in the hauls beyond the scope of its authority and in violation of state law requiring permission for business by the PSC.

On April 25 the PSC ordered the company to cease and desist from such hauls since it had no authority, but that since the order was issued the company has continued to participate in the hauls in direct violation of the commission's order, the petition said.

Dr. Lamb

Patient wants to find doctor

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you recommend a good doctor locally I can start with as a family doctor? I'm a 61-year-old married man and have always been in good general health. Recently I haven't been up to par. I went to two local doctors, both made a cursory examination and no diagnosis. In the past year I have gone from normal weight of 200 to 135 pounds. The first 25 or so went repidly and the rest gradually. I have a good appetite. I have signs of diabetes, such as vision changes and easy tiredness but they advise me my blood is normal.

I have frequent bloating of the lower abdomen, usually with pain and pressure. The pressure has caused me to have a pain which I can relieve with a few minutes of massage. And, I have occasional black stools. I take no medications, exercise a little and am retired as a postal inspector.

DEAR READER — I advise people with your problem of locating a family doctor to call the county medical society and ask for their recommendations. In your particular case I would ask them for a specialist in internal medicine.

I do not wish to alarm you but major weight loss with a normal appetite must be carefully evaluated. It can mean diabetes, with loss of sugar in the urine. It can also be from an overactive thyroid, anxiety-depression, or it can be a cancer. No stone should be left unturned until the cause of the weight loss is pretty well established.

You have two other symptoms that need further investigation, specifically a change in your bowel habit with gas problems and occasional black stools.

Anyone with a change in bowel habit or black stools, even without weight loss, should have an examination of the colon and rectum. That includes a finger examination an instrument to examine the lower bowel and X ray studies. If you haven't had these your case has not been completely examined if your history is as you state.

Black stools, particularly if they have a tarry consistency, may be from digested blood from internal bleeding. Just black stools can also be cause from taking iron tablets.

It is important for the public to realize that the most common serious cancer in the general population is cancer of the colon and rectum. Breast cancer is more common in women and prostate cancer more common in men, but for a mixed population of men and women, colon and rectal cancer is first. It is a major killer. It can be cured if detected soon enough. That is why good examinations are important. No so-called complete examination is really complete without at least a finger examination of the rectum. This is a small indignity compared to the opportunity to detect a large number of the most common form of serious cancer.

Early detection and surgery results in a high rate of cure. The problem is achieving early detection, either because of inadequate examinations or the patient's reluctance to seek an examination when he needs it. Remember any unexplained change in bowel habit, bleeding or black, tarry stools all demand an immediate examination.

Send your question to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. For information on the bowels send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents and ask for The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation.

BLOOMFIELD — Elfrink Truck Lines Inc. of Advance was ordered this week to not conduct direct line hauls on intrastate commerce as a motor common carrier between St. Louis and Sikeston by Circuit Judge Falke McHaney, who ordered a hearing set at 10 a.m. Aug. 20 for the company to show cause why an injunction should not be granted.

The order came after the Missouri Public Service Commission filed suit against the company, asking that a temporary and then permanent order be issued preventing the company from making the hauls between the two cities. The PSC in its petition claimed that the company had been operating the hauls without proper authorization.

On March 19 the PSC issued an order citing Elfrink to show cause why its authority to operate in the state should not be suspended or revoked or penalties sought by the commission for operating in intrastate commerce between St. Louis and Sikeston without requisite authority granted by the commission.

In its petition, the PSC said that on April 25 it and the defendant submitted a stipulation to the commission in which it was admitted that during January the company had participated in 22 direct line hauls from St. Louis to Sikeston and that it had participated in the hauls beyond the scope of its authority and in violation of state law requiring permission for business by the PSC.

On April 25 the PSC ordered the company to cease and desist from such hauls since it had no authority, but that since the order was issued the company has continued to participate in the hauls in direct violation of the commission's order, the petition said.

Hearings set for two men in Stoddard Co.

BLOOMFIELD — Preliminary hearings for Ronald Flanery and William D. Griffith on charges of tampering with a motor vehicle and burglary and stealing were set for Aug. 14 by Judge Jimmie Trammell this week in Stoddard County Magistrate Court.

The charges stem from incidents that occurred in Puxico on July 24, when the two slipped away after attending church services and did not return to Mingo Job Corps Center near Puxico, where they reside.

The Stoddard County Sheirff's Department charged the two with entering a school bus and vandalizing it, then breaking into a service station in Puxico.

Dr. Lamb

Patient wants to find doctor

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you recommend a good doctor locally I can start with as a family doctor? I'm a 61-year-old married man and have always been in good general health. Recently I haven't been up to par. I went to two local doctors, both made a cursory examination and no diagnosis. In the past year I have gone from normal weight of 200 to 135 pounds. The first 25 or so went repidly and the rest gradually. I have a good appetite. I have signs of diabetes, such as vision changes and easy tiredness but they advise me my blood is normal.

I have frequent bloating of the lower abdomen, usually with pain and pressure. The pressure has caused me to have a pain which I can relieve with a few minutes of massage. And, I have occasional black stools. I take no medications, exercise a little and am retired as a postal inspector.

DEAR READER — I advise people with your problem of locating a family doctor to call the county medical society and ask for their recommendations. In your particular case I would ask them for a specialist in internal medicine.

I do not wish to alarm you but major weight loss with a normal appetite must be carefully evaluated. It can mean diabetes, with loss of sugar in the urine. It can also be from an overactive thyroid, anxiety-depression, or it can be a cancer. No stone should be left unturned until the cause of the weight loss is pretty well established.

You have two other symptoms that need further investigation, specifically a change in your bowel habit with gas problems and occasional black stools.

Anyone with a change in bowel habit or black stools, even without weight loss, should have an examination of the colon and rectum. That includes a finger examination an instrument to examine the lower bowel and X ray studies. If you haven't had these your case has not been completely examined if your history is as you state.

Black stools, particularly if they have a tarry consistency, may be from digested blood from internal bleeding. Just black stools can also be cause from taking iron tablets.

It is important for the public to realize that the most common serious cancer in the general population is cancer of the colon and rectum. Breast cancer is more common in women and prostate cancer more common in men, but for a mixed population of men and women, colon and rectal cancer is first. It is a major killer. It can be cured if detected soon enough. That is why good examinations are important. No so-called complete examination is really complete without at least a finger examination of the rectum. This is a small indignity compared to the opportunity to detect a large number of the most common form of serious cancer.

Early detection and surgery results in a high rate of cure. The problem is achieving early detection, either because of inadequate examinations or the patient's reluctance to seek an examination when he needs it. Remember any unexplained change in bowel habit, bleeding or black, tarry stools all demand an immediate examination.

Send your question to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. For information on the bowels send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents and ask for The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation.

Household hints

When soft custard separates on removal from the stove, beat it hard for five minues with an egg-beater.

Bury a yeast cake in salt and it will keep for some time.

When baking a milk pudding, place the dish in a pan of water in the oven. This prevents the pudding from burbning or boiling over.

The whites of eggs will whip more readily if a pinch of salt is added to them. If the eggs are placed in cold water for a time before being broken, they will whip easily.

Ann Landers

Wife is hurt by insensitive husband

Dear Ann Landers: I do not agree with your notion that people who don't drink have an advantage over those who do. No way.

For health reasons I can't touch a drop of alcohol. For many years it didn't bother me. I thought I was better off without it. But suddenly I'm the oddball. It seems like these days people won't take "no" for an answer. They just bug you to death to have drink. When you refuse, they consider you some kind of freak.

Then there's this problem of being the only one who is sober when everyone else is plastered. The profanity, the pinches in th fanny and the off-color jokes would seem funny if I weren't stone-cold sober.

The worst of it is when we get home after a party and my husband says, "You were sure a stick-in-the-mud -- a real wet blanket." It really hurts, Ann. Sign me -- Dry Is Dullsville

Dear Dry: When you see your letter in print, I hope you'll recognize the flaws in your thinking.

You don't owe it to anybody to "have a drink." And your friends have no right to pressure you. Moreover, anyone who thinks they have to put up with profanity, off-color jokes, and fanny pinches is pathetically insecure. The fact that you'd like to get stiff so you could accept behavior that is offensive when you're sober should tell you something about yourself.

That husband of yours sounds like a real winner. People who must get their jollies out of a bottle are a pretty sad lot. Stop feeling sorry for yourself, Toots, and start to feel sorry for THEM. They need it.

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice might work for some but it didn't work for me. You praised "Brown Eyes" who took her errant husband back when he discovered "the sample was ample." (She reported he has been a perfect husband ever since.)

Well, "the sample" WASN'T ample for my tomcat and now he has decided he wants to buy the product. The woman is a tramp and was mixed up with two married men before she got hold of mine.

I'm sure he'll come back on his knees eventually, Ann. My question is, when he does should I take him? -- Getting Ready

Dear G.R.: SO the sample wasn't ample. I'm sorry. But how can I advise you when you give me no information? How long have you been married? Are there any children? How old is Lover Boy? How old are you? How old is "The Sample"?

When he comes back and you can fill me in on the details, please write again and I'll try to help you.

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to "Sleepless Nights," the girl who was terrified by obscene phone calls, was sensible. You told her not to say a word -- just hang up. May I make another suggestion that worked very well for me?

Keep an old-fashioned police whistle by the phone and when the creep calls, give him a blast that will crack his eardrum. I did it twice and I haven't heard from him since. -- Love The Peace and Quiet

Dear Love: Thanks for the suggestion. It makes sense and I endorse it.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers's new booklet, "High School Sex And How To Deal With It -- A Guide For Teens And Their Parents," gives no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation. For each booklet, send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Tomato peelings may be human food resource

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tomato peelings and their potential as human food are receiving the federal government's attention and $280,000 of its money.

The government is contributing the funds to a two-year "commercial feasability" study aimed at finding out if processors can convert the normally discarded peelings into food for humans.

Nearly 80 per cent of the tomatoes for processing are grown in California and about 130,000 tons of peels are produced annually.

Disposal, which requires special handling, costs $1 million per year, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday. "Half of this peel material might be used as food, with a value of nearly $3 million annually," it said.

Officials said evaluations will be made of methods for recovering tomato material from peeling waste which results from a practice of dipping tomatoes in a hot lye solution so that the peels can be removed easily.

The department said that $80,000 will come from its research funds and $200,000 from the Environmental Protection Agency.

Sugar Creek undefeated

Defending National Sr. Babe Ruth baseball champions – Sugar Creek, Mo. -- emerged as the seven team Midwest Plains sectional tournament's only undefeated team after three days of action at VFW stadium. The Creekers posted their third win of the double elimination tournament, defeating Wichita, Kan., 4-2 in the nightcap of Thursday's three game card.

Sikeston remained as one of the event's four remaining teams by eliminating Moorehead, Minn., 13-1 and Brooklyn Center, Minn., sent Kirksville, Mo., home with a 7-1 verdict.

Pitching continued to b e the defending champs biggest asset as they grouped behind the four hit effort of Jeff Cornell. The Missouri state champs pitching has allowed only 10 hits and four runs in their first three contests.

Sikeston Eliminates Moorehead

Lefthander Glenn Alexander pitching five and two thirds inning of no hit ball and ended up with a three hitter for Sikeston, who also has been getting some top pitching performances. The hosts lost their opener against the defending champs on a three hitter by Rick Taylor, which was followed by Kevin Lasters four hit effort.

David Shell shacked three hits, two of which went for extra bases, in leading Sikeston's 13 hit offense. Steve Burchfield went two for four and scored four times as Sikeston crossed the plate 10 times in the final three innings of the seven inning contest.

Sikeston failed to score in only one inning, that being the fourth, after sending one run home in each of the first three frames. The local stars scored three in the fifth, four in the sixth and completed their scoring with three in the seventh. Sikeston runners swiped seven bases in the contest and was paced by Dale Deal's two thefts.

Brooklyn Center Advances

Gred LaChance laced a two run single in the third to put Brooklyn Center ahead for the first time after Kirskville had taken a 1-0 lead in the first. Brooklyn Center ended up with four runs on two hits in the third and added another score in the fourth and two more in the fifth.

Jim Hasket, after struggling through the first two innings, retired 16 of the final 18 batters he faced and ended up with a six hitter. He fanned eight batters, all in the final five innings of play.

Sugar Creek Prevails

Bob Deneir smacked two doubles, driving in two runs and scored once to head up the National champs five hit offense. Both blasts were bounced off the left field fence some 340 feet away from home plate.

The game lasted until early this morning and was delayed when Sikeston police had to be called in to restrain Wichita's manager Larry Foley who had a disagreeement with umpire Norman VanAmburg.

Tournament action resumes today at 2 p.m. with Sikeston battling Brooklyn Center. Wichita takes on the winner at 7:30 tonight. Sugar Creek will take the night off and will battle the winner of today's contests Saturday night at 7:30.

Exhibition openers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill Kilmer will learn how fickle the Washington fans are tonight when the Redskins meet the Atlanta Falcons in RFK Stadium in an exhibition game.

Kilmer, a 13-year veteran who has been in the middle of controversy during the off-season, will be the undisputed team leader when he opens at quarterback and plays at least the first half.

During the off-season, the Redskins retired Sonny Jurgensen, who had become as much a part of the scenery as the Capitol Dome, the White House or the Washington Monument.

Kilmer expects to hear some chants from the stands from fans of Jurgensen or Joe Theismann, who has been the No. 2 quarterback, and possibly advocates of Randy Johnson, the No. 3 signal caller.

"I always love to play at RFK," said Kilmer. "The fans have been good to me. I certainly understand their feeling for Sonny. I had the same feeling, too, because he was a great, great player."

The Falcon+Redskin game opens the first full week of exhibitions in the NFL.

On Saturday, Philadelphia is at Pittsburgh; Minnesota meets the New York Jets at Phoenix, Ariz.; Dallas travels to Los Angeles; Cincinnati is at Miami; Buffalo plays at Green Bay; St. Louis goes to Kansas City; Baltimore is at Denver; Houston and New Orleans play the inaugural game in the new Superdome, and Chicago visits San Diego.

The first full weekend of preseason games wind up Sunday when Detroit and Oakland clash at Berkeley, Calif.; Cleveland is at San Francisco and the New York Giants take on the New England Patriots at Foxboro, Mass.

Kilmer got the Redskins off to a winning start last Saturday by hitting on 11 of 16 for 130 yards, including a 48-yard touchdown to Charley Taylor, for a 17-9 victory over Cincinnati in the Hall of Fame game in Canton, Ohio.

The Falcons, with Marion Campbell beginning his first full season as head coach, are coming into RFK Stadium with a record of never beating the Redskins in three preseason and three regular season games, although his Atlanta team managed a 20-20 tie in 1967.

Sugar Creek undefeated

Defending National Sr. Babe Ruth baseball champions – Sugar Creek, Mo. -- emerged as the seven team Midwest Plains sectional tournament's only undefeated team after three days of action at VFW stadium. The Creekers posted their third win of the double elimination tournament, defeating Wichita, Kan., 4-2 in the nightcap of Thursday's three game card.

Sikeston remained as one of the event's four remaining teams by eliminating Moorehead, Minn., 13-1 and Brooklyn Center, Minn., sent Kirksville, Mo., home with a 7-1 verdict.

Pitching continued to b e the defending champs biggest asset as they grouped behind the four hit effort of Jeff Cornell. The Missouri state champs pitching has allowed only 10 hits and four runs in their first three contests.

Sikeston Eliminates Moorehead

Lefthander Glenn Alexander pitching five and two thirds inning of no hit ball and ended up with a three hitter for Sikeston, who also has been getting some top pitching performances. The hosts lost their opener against the defending champs on a three hitter by Rick Taylor, which was followed by Kevin Lasters four hit effort.

David Shell shacked three hits, two of which went for extra bases, in leading Sikeston's 13 hit offense. Steve Burchfield went two for four and scored four times as Sikeston crossed the plate 10 times in the final three innings of the seven inning contest.

Sikeston failed to score in only one inning, that being the fourth, after sending one run home in each of the first three frames. The local stars scored three in the fifth, four in the sixth and completed their scoring with three in the seventh. Sikeston runners swiped seven bases in the contest and was paced by Dale Deal's two thefts.

Brooklyn Center Advances

Gred LaChance laced a two run single in the third to put Brooklyn Center ahead for the first time after Kirskville had taken a 1-0 lead in the first. Brooklyn Center ended up with four runs on two hits in the third and added another score in the fourth and two more in the fifth.

Jim Hasket, after struggling through the first two innings, retired 16 of the final 18 batters he faced and ended up with a six hitter. He fanned eight batters, all in the final five innings of play.

Sugar Creek Prevails

Bob Deneir smacked two doubles, driving in two runs and scored once to head up the National champs five hit offense. Both blasts were bounced off the left field fence some 340 feet away from home plate.

The game lasted until early this morning and was delayed when Sikeston police had to be called in to restrain Wichita's manager Larry Foley who had a disagreeement with umpire Norman VanAmburg.

Tournament action resumes today at 2 p.m. with Sikeston battling Brooklyn Center. Wichita takes on the winner at 7:30 tonight. Sugar Creek will take the night off and will battle the winner of today's contests Saturday night at 7:30.

Cards face Padres

.. By The Associated Press

The Kansas City Royals lost little time in getting on with the business of winning Thursday night. The St. Louis Cardinals were idle, but host the San Diego Padres tonight.

Fred Patek slammed an inside-the-park home run on the first pitch in the bottom of the first and the Royals were off and running to a 10-2 decision over the Minnesota Twins. It was the fifth consecutive victory for Kansas City; the 15th in their last 19 games.

Paul Splittorff, 5-6, worked the first six innings on the way to his fourth straight win since returning from bullpen duty. He limited the Twins to four singles, struck out two and walked none before giving way to Lindy McDaniel at the start of the seventh because of a blister on his pitching hand.

The Royals built a nine-run margin by the sixth. Al Cowens cracked adouble and two singles to drive in three runs for the Royals.

Kansas City remains 6½ games back of Oakland on the strength of the A's 10-1 victory over the Texas Rangers Thursday night.

Tonight Kansas City moves to Cleveland where Marty Pattin, 8-6, will see mound duty against the Indians' Roric Harrison, 4-3.

The Cardinals will pitch Bob Forsch, 10-8, against Dan Spillner, 4-9.

MU evaluation

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Missouri has galloping Tony Galbreath back this fall. The Tigers also have what could be a more versatile, quicker defense.

But what Missouri has the most of is tough opponents—no less than four of their 1975 matchups included Top 10 squads from last season and each is capable of twisting the Tigers' tails.

The bone-crushing schedule has not been lost on Coach Al Onofrio, who, in four years at Missouri, has certainly become accustomed to tough lineups.

"You can say words about how good you're going to be," the 54-year-old Onofrio admitted Thursday at a luncheon here. "But the day comes when you have to live up to them.

"I've been accused of being negative. I'm not negative. I think we have a good team. But I look at our schedule and I have to be realistic."

The Tigers appear to be as sound as last fall's 7-4 squad that upset Arizona State and Nebraska, but they could well be gasping for air by the time the Big Eight Conference slate begins Oct. 12 against Oklahoma State. Missouri journeys to Birmingham to meet Alabama Sept. 8, then plays Michigan in Ann Arbor Oct. r. In between are nonconference contests with Illinois and Wisconsin. League matches include Nebraska Nov. 1 and Oklahoma Nov. 15, both at Columbia.

But Onofrio believes in trying to find a silver lining in even the darkest thunderhead.

"I'd rather play the good teams than the average ones," he said convincingly. "I think you have a better chance to develop into a good team yourself when you play the tough ones."

Missouri's fortunes rest most solidly on Galbreath, a 6-foot-1, 230-pound senior who came out of nowhere to ramble for eight touchdowns and pass for three more last season. He saw only limited action in 1974's opening games, but Onofrio now openly admits he is Heisman Trophy material.

"Tony will give us another dimension this season. He threw about five times last season and I guarantee he'll throw more than that this year, maybe about five times in a game. He gives us the sweep and option passes and we'll use them," said Onofrio.

Also returning is quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz, who passed for six touchdowns last season as a sophomore but also endured eight interceptions. Onofrio is hoping for more consistency from the rangy signal caller in 1975, especially with such receivers as Galbreath, slotback Joe Stewart and ends Randy Grosshart and Charles Douglass available.

The Tigers have their biggest offensive line since Onofrio took over in 1971, with 250-pound tackles James Taylor and Morris Towns leading the way.

Defensively, Missouri is more inexperienced than Onofrio would like, but he expects the quickness to make up for that shortcoming. Only four starters—tackle Tom Cooper, end Bob McRoberts, and cornerbacks Rob Fitzgerald and Ken Downing—are back, but the Tiger coach is high on several newcomers and he thinks a new four-deep secondary will allow them to be more versatile.

"Our defense won't be real big, but it will be all over the field," he predicted. "At this stage, we feel the defense has improved, but it's going to have to get better with each game. It's going to have to be pretty good the first game, too."

But what Missouri has the most of is tough opponents—no less than four of their 1975 matchups included Top 10 squads from last season and each is capable of twisting the Tigers' tails.

The bone-crushing schedule has not been lost on Coach Al Onofrio, who, in four years at Missouri, has certainly become accustomed to tough lineups.

"You can say words about how good you're going to be," the 54-year-old Onofrio admitted Thursday at a luncheon here. "But the day comes when you have to live up to them.

"I've been accused of being negative. I'm not negative. I think we have a good team. But I look at our schedule and I have to be realistic."

The Tigers appear to be as sound as last fall's 7-4 squad that upset Arizona State and Nebraska, but they could well be gasping for air by the time the Big Eight Conference slate begins Oct. 12 against Oklahoma State. Missouri journeys to Birmingham to meet Alabama Sept. 8, then plays Michigan in Ann Arbor Oct. r. In between are nonconference contests with Illinois and Wisconsin. League matches include Nebraska Nov. 1 and Oklahoma Nov. 15, both at Columbia.

But Onofrio believes in trying to find a silver lining in even the darkest thunderhead.

"I'd rather play the good teams than the average ones," he said convincingly. "I think you have a better chance to develop into a good team yourself when you play the tough ones."

Missouri's fortunes rest most solidly on Galbreath, a 6-foot-1, 230-pound senior who came out of nowhere to ramble for eight touchdowns and pass for three more last season. He saw only limited action in 1974's opening games, but Onofrio now openly admits he is Heisman Trophy material.

"Tony will give us another dimension this season. He threw about five times last season and I guarantee he'll throw more than that this year, maybe about five times in a game. He gives us the sweep and option passes and we'll use them," said Onofrio.

Also returning is quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz, who passed for six touchdowns last season as a sophomore but also endured eight interceptions. Onofrio is hoping for more consistency from the rangy signal caller in 1975, especially with such receivers as Galbreath, slotback Joe Stewart and ends Randy Grosshart and Charles Douglass available.

The Tigers have their biggest offensive line since Onofrio took over in 1971, with 250-pound tackles James Taylor and Morris Towns leading the way.

Defensively, Missouri is more inexperienced than Onofrio would like, but he expects the quickness to make up for that shortcoming. Only four starters—tackle Tom Cooper, end Bob McRoberts, and cornerbacks Rob Fitzgerald and Ken Downing—are back, but the Tiger coach is high on several newcomers and he thinks a new four-deep secondary will allow them to be more versatile.

"Our defense won't be real big, but it will be all over the field," he predicted. "At this stage, we feel the defense has improved, but it's going to have to get better with each game. It's going to have to be pretty good the first game, too."

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Then Satan took him to Jerusalem to the roof of the Temple. "Jump off," he said, "and prove you are the Son of God; for the Scriptures declare, 'God will send his angels to keep you from harm.' Jesus retorted, "It also says not to put the Lord your God to a foolish test!" Next Satan showed him the nations of the world and all their glory. "I'll give it all to you," he said, "if you will only kneel and worship me." "Get out of here, Satan," Jesus told him.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Then Satan took him to Jerusalem to the roof of the Temple. "Jump off," he said, "and prove you are the Son of God; for the Scriptures declare, 'God will send his angels to keep you from harm.' Jesus retorted, "It also says not to put the Lord your God to a foolish test!" Next Satan showed him the nations of the world and all their glory. "I'll give it all to you," he said, "if you will only kneel and worship me." "Get out of here, Satan," Jesus told him.

Tallapoosa Baptist Church marks 50th anniversary

TALLAPOOSA—The Tallapoosa Baptist Church is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. The highlight of this observance was a special golden anniversary homecoming which was held at the church last Sunday, following a week-long revival featuring former pastors and other young ministers, who are former members of the church.

At the climax of Sunday's afternoon service, the Rev. Gene Lancaster, current pastor, made presentation of special awards to 10 persons in recognition of longtime dedicated service to the church.

The newly named First Southern Baptist Church of Tallapoosa is located in the village of Tallapoosa, from which it took its original name. The church was organized in 1925 and its first meetings were held in one room of a small home, probably belonging to one of the eight charter members.

Charter members were: James O. Rendard, Miss Jessie Renard, Mrs. Rachel Rogers, Mrs. W.H. Sanders, Mrs. R.P. Woolridge, Mrs. Erma Cole, Mrs. Lizzie Arnold and Mrs. Sallie Bracken.

According to church records, the Fred Summers Store was a convenient meeting place for men who planned the church building.

The original structure was drastically different from the existing building. The first roof had wooden shingles made by the members. The walls consisted of only studding and weatherboard, leaving cracks where daylight was visible in many places.

There was a feeble attempt made at heating the structure with a box-wood stove. Benches were placed in a semi-circle around the store in an effort to keep warm during winter services, and everyone shared the same Sunday School teacher.

Benches were made from logs which were transported by team-drawn wagons across the floodway ditch, and sawed at a nearby sawmill. Members then constructed each bench, using three boards of the rough lumber, each about three inches wide. These were spaced about one and one-half inches apart and the seats had no backs.

Some of the tables used in the church annex today were made from those early seats.

In the first years of the church there were no screens on the windows, so birds, bats and insects had free run of the building. There were only exposed rafters above, with no inside ceiling. Coal oil lamps hung on nails in the wall studs to provide meager lighting.

Nevertheless, through the past 50 years the church has continued to provide the light of faith and hope to its people.

'Gods' multiply along with cults

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The "gods" are multiplying in America. In contrast to the traditional monotheistic view of one universal God recognized through events of Jewish-Christian history, there is a rising, mixed polytheism.

That is a conclusion drawn these days by numerous religious and social analysts.

It's apparent "in the proliferation of cults," says Dr. Robert Ellwood, a religious sociologist at the University of Southern California and a specialist on new religions in modern culture.

"Withdrawal groups," he calls them.

He says they diverge from historic concepts of "church-type groups oriented to normative values of society and family. In the cults, stronger group cohesiveness takes the place of the family and very authoritative leaders take the place of the father."

Dr. Walter Martin, a professor at the Melodyland School of Theology here, says the cults have "become very powerful in the United States" and display a "semantic jungle" of religious terms and ideas about divinity.

"The problem in dealing with cults is that words undergo redefinition," he says. "This makes for multifarious definitions of God, a kind of pantheism or polytheistic theology that does not bear any relation to historic religion."

David L. Miller, associate professor of religion at Syracuse University, sees evidence of the shift in current "interest in the occult, in magic, in extraterrestrial life, in Hindu India and Buddhist Japan, in multidemoned China, in sorcery, in 'new religions' and many other meaning systems hitherto foreign."

College students now demand "massive and total access to all the gods of men, Eastern and Western, primitive and modern, heretical and orthodox, mad and sane," he writes in a book recently issued by Harper and Row, called "The New Polytheism: Rebirth of the Gods and Goddesses."

Martin, author of "The Kingdom of the Cults" recently issued by Bethany Press, noted that Jesus predicted a rise of false "Christs" and "gods" as the world moved toward its consummation. Martin added: "The massive proliferation of cults would indicate we're in that age."

Malden to host Tent meetings

MALDEN—A series of tent meetings will be conducted next Monday through Saturday in a tent located on the lot beside the water tank in Malden Industrial Park.

All services will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature Victor Frazier, black minister of Carpenter Street Church of Christ in Memphis, Tenn., as guest speaker.

Frazier teaches Bible at Harding Academy in Memphis and serves as a probation officer for Shelby County.

Vatican reaffirms belief Satan exists

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church has reaffirmed its conviction that Satan lives in fact, not fantasy, but warned against a "morbid fascination" with devils.

In a special study commissioned by its top doctrinal body, the Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the Vatican denied that the Devil is just the personification or dramatization of evil.

Publication of the study recalled a speech by Pope Paul VI in 1972 in which he said the Devil was a "creature of God," albeit a fallen one, not just a symbol of evil. His remarks caused an uproar in progressive church circles.

The Sacred Congregation study expressed "unease" over current disbelief in the Devil and said: "It would be a deadly mistake to behave as if the redemption had already completed its work.

"Satan, whom Jesus ... met in the desert and during his Passion, cannot be the mere product of man's tendency to storify and personify his ideas. Nor can he be the aberrant leftover of a primitive cultural language."

The study noted, however, that Christ "never put Satan at the center of his Gospel" and warned against "facile" claims of demonic possession and manifestation.

It made no direct mention of the contemporary interest in black magic and demonology manifested in such books and films as "The Exorcist." But it warned:

"It is easy to fall victim to the imagination, to get carried off course by inaccurate tales clumsily put or carelessly interpreted."

Ordination tests expulsion threat

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The gauntlet of expulsion tossed down by Lutheran conservatives has been picked up by church moderates - and the result may be yet another split in the church's congregation.

The moderates' reply is the Rev. Leonard Dale II, a 26-year-old graduate of the rebel Seminary in Exile here.

When the Rev. Dale was ordained and installed Sunday as assistant pastor of Calvary Lutheran Church in nearby Ferguson, it was the first ordination since Lutheran leaders last month authorized the ouster of district presidents continuing to ordain Seminex graduates.

"I'm pretty sure the synod president will not stand for it," said the Rev. Dr. John Tietjen, president of Seminex.

"That will mean that there will likely be a confrontation between the synod senate and the district."

The synod's position against Seminex hardened at its July convention in Anaheim, Calif., when the Rev. Dr. Jacob A.O. Preus, the synod president, was given the right to dismiss any district leader who persisted in placing graduates of the school.

Seminex was formed last year after a faculty-student walkout at the synod's Concordia Seminary in Clayton. The split was caused by a doctrinal dispute between moderates and conservatives.

Eight dissenters among the 40 district presidents face dismissal if they continue to ordain Seminex graduates.

Dale was ordained by the Rev. Harold H. Hecht of Detroit, the head of the English District. Hecht said the district meets next month in Chicago to decide its future course but predicted it would support his decision to continue ordaining Seminex graduates.

"We are relying on the call of the congregation," said the Rev. Hecht. "The congregation is the boss and not me. I don't think the Anaheim convention overrules that fact."

Youth-led revival set at Murray Lane

Featuring a kickoff performance of the praise musical, "Alleluia", by the combined adult-youth choir on the opening night, youth-led revival services will be presented Aug. 14-17 at Murray Lane Baptist Church.

The evangelist for the services--scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 10:30 and 7 p.m. Sunday--will be the Rev. Richard Long of Bolivar, Tenn., a former Sikeston resident who was converted and baptized while attending the Murray Lane church.

The Rev. Mr. Long graduated from Union University in Jackson, Tenn., last year and presently is pastor of Perrins Chapel Baptist Church in Bolivar.

The revival music leader will be David Watkins, a junior at Scott County Central High School and member of Murray Lane church.

No. 199. Esther Becomes Queen

When Esther was placed under the care and tutelage of Hegai, she immediately impressed him. He tried to make her comfortable and happy, even giving her a special menu, seven girls from the palace for maids, and the most luxurious apartment available.

Each young woman was required to take beauty treatments with oil of myrrh for six months, and with oils, ointments, and perfumes for another six months. After this year of preparation, each maiden was to be sent in turn to the king. During this time, Esther told no person that she was a Jewess, for Mordecai had told her not to reveal her heritage. When Esther's time came to go to the king, Hegai dressed her so radiantly that all the other girls greatly admired her.

"So Esther was taken unto King Ahasuerus into his house royal in the 10th month ... in the seventh year of his reign. And the king loved Esther above all the women, and she obtained grace and favour in his sight more than all the virgins; so that he set the royal crown upon her head, and made her queen instead of Vashti." In Big Sky Country

it's not always the same old cowboys and Indians story. Out here, the cowboys sometimes ARE Indians. Blackfeet, Cheyenne, Sioux and Crow from Montana's reservations are naturals at riding herd and the other outdoor chores that are a ranch hand's way of life. Some also turn their skills to rodeo competition, appearing throughout the West. Rider at night, spurs shoulder high, sticks with a determined bronc to the final whistle.

From the best ponyback seats in the house, future cowboys above left follow the North American Indian Days rodeo during the Blackfeet Reservation pow wow at Browning, Mont., just east of Glacier National Park. That's not a quick lunch of jerky beef but a "piggin string", used for tying a calf's feet, that contestant chews on as he awaits the signal to start after a frisky calf. Hitting the dirt the hardest way, cowboy at left loses a bareback event to the bronc.

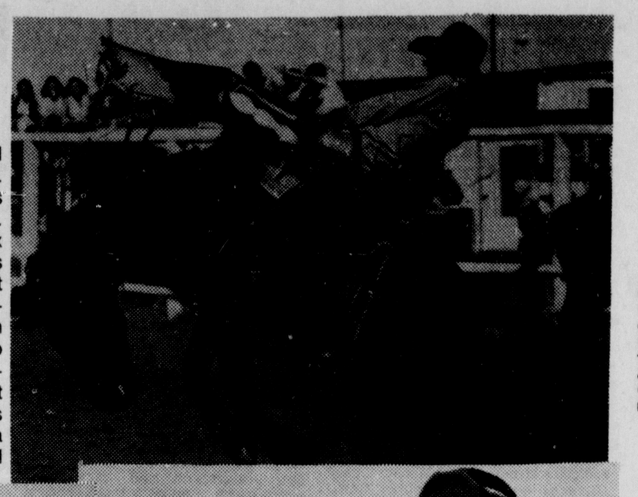
In Big Sky Country

it's not always the same old cowboys and Indians story. Out here, the cowboys sometimes ARE Indians. Blackfeet, Cheyenne, Sioux and Crow from Montana's reservations are naturals at riding herd and the other outdoor chores that are a ranch hand's way of life. Some also turn their skills to rodeo competition, appearing throughout the West. Rider at night, spurs shoulder high, sticks with a determined bronc to the final whistle.



From the best ponyback seats in the house, future cowboys above left follow the North American Indian Days rodeo during the Blackfeet Reservation pow wow at Browning, Mont., just east of Glacier National Park. That's not a quick lunch of jerky beef but a "piggin string", used for tying a calf's feet, that contestant chews on as he awaits the signal to start after a frisky calf. Hitting the dirt the hardest way, cowboy at left loses a bareback event to the bronc.

Emergency ambulance service in the New Madrid service area is being handled temporarily by the other three New Madrid County units, based in Portageville, Parma and Sikeston.

The modular ambulance, which was bought by the city of Atlanta in April at a cost of $20,000, was considered too large to maneuver in heavy city traffic and New Madrid County was able to purchase the vehicle for $15,450, Farrenburg said.

"This is the kind of ministry that is coming on strong," he explains of his free counseling service. "It's out of the churches altogether. It's people listening to what people are, not what you wish them to be. If you accept people exactly where they are, a gentle honesty comes from that. I believe that is what Jesus did in the marketplace."

"Sucker" movies -- they are a gender all their own. One year they can be appallingly mushy, like "Love Story", or weirdly vulgar, such as "The Exorcist". They are manufactured in droves, and the American public pays out a fistfull of dollars in droves as well.

This year's sucker movies feature an electrical shark nicknamed "Jaws" that chews on swimmers, a devastating earthquake, a skyscraper that barbecues people and shiny, black bugs that inherit the earth through old-fashioned cannibalism.

Their gender is "disaster" movies, determined much the same way gasoline prices are. Hollywood producers get together and decide just how much they can get by with without straining the budget.

This process is almost as traditional as Christmas falling on a Wednesday, Richard Nixon saying, "I didn't know anything about it" and inflationary recession or recessionary inflation -- whatever.

American consumers are a bunch of suckers. Most of the gener movies are not artistically excellent,not especially entertaining, unless you enjoy getting the "heebie-jeebies" and do not bring home much of a lesson, except not to recommend it to friends.

The plot is thin, often fading in and out, the dialogue consists of screams or sounds like static on a radio and the acting gets buried somewhere in the falling debris. and the geysers of blood, well ... that's just standard equipment.

Granted, we are as much to blame for the "sucker" phenomenon as anyone in moviedom is because we are all guilty of jump-on-the bandwagon popularity. This way, we've got something to chatter about to our fellow co-workers, husbands, mothers-in-law and favorite house plants.

What's really dumb is when CBS editorialists try to nail "disaster" movies' popularity on man's attraction to forces he cannot control. That's just it -- he can.

What I'd like to see are movies with a message or just some good old cinema worth talking about for any reason besides its horrible bloodiness, mushiness, oddness or whatever the next gender will be. If we stop storming the box office, Hollywood magnates will stop flooding the market with the same old thing.

I will have to admit, however, that my criticism may not be valid because I have not seen one of the movies I've referred to and refuse do do so. When you have seen one mistake, you know they are all alike. Even the popcorn tastes gummy when the movie is bad.

Lately, the movies we have been getting make soap operas seem intelligent. When that happens, it's time for a change.
